

Social and Personal.

One of the most delightful of midsummer house parties was given by the Misses Carpenter, of Clifton Forge, Va., their beautiful home being the scene for two weeks of uninterrupted pleasure and diversion.

Several guests, trips to Hot Springs in carriages, visits to Low Moor and fishing parties on Cowpasture River occupied the days and banished every thought of dullness, the Misses Carpenter proving themselves on all occasions the most graceful and agreeable hostesses.

Among the guests at the house party were Miss Maude and Miss Ruby Cheever, of Richmond; Miss Lenora Cooke, of Hollins; Miss Nell Schaffer, of Westminster, Md.; Miss Ethel James, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Mr. F. M. Bosley, of Richmond; Mr. J. Newton Vaughan, of Ashland; Mr. Thornton Sneed, of Lynchburg; Mr. R. O. Warren, of New York; Mr. P. S. Boxley, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mr. E. T. Kindred, of Roanoke, and Mr. Thomas Towles, of West Virginia.

Cox—Middleton. Miss Ruth Middleton, the daughter of Mrs. H. V. Middleton, of No. 2908 East Grace Street, was married last evening at 7 o'clock, in St. John's Episcopal Church to Mr. Andrew B. Cox, the Rev. Robert A. Goodwin, the rector, performing the ceremony.

Miss Clara E. Middleton attended the bride as maid of honor. Mr. William Schaffner was best man. The list of groomsmen included Mr. William Hinds, Mr. Scott Cunningham, Mr. Charles H. Miller, Mr. J. Piper Cox, Mr. John B. Welsh and Mr. F. Q. Anderson.

The bride was given in a brown silk traveling costume, with brown hat and gloves, and carried a shower of bride roses. The maid of honor was in white chiffon over white silk and had pink roses. Immediately after their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Cox left for an extended Northern tour, from which they will return to New London, Conn. Mr. Cox, who is engaged in business at New London, was formerly with the W. R. Trigg Company, this city, where he has many friends.

Brannan—Nowlan.

The wedding of Miss Alice B. Nowlan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Nowlan, to Mr. Francis Hugh Brannan, connected in business with Howard & Brannan, was celebrated yesterday morning by the Rev. Father J. B. O'Reilly in the paragon of Sacred Heart Church. The bride was given in a fawn-colored crepe de chine and white lace hat. Her flowers were bride roses. Her maid of honor, Miss Daisy Brannan, was in white over blue, and carried a coronation bouquet of carnations. Mr. William Jenkins was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Brannan are now in New York, and will visit the St. Louis Exposition before their return to Richmond.

Cards Are Out.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Allee, of Henrico, have sent out invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Loretta Knight Allee, to Mr. Karl H. Cornwell, the ceremony to take place at 3 P. M., July 27th, in the home of the bride's parents, "Wakefield," Va.

NIGHT AND DAY.

By SIDNEY LANIER.

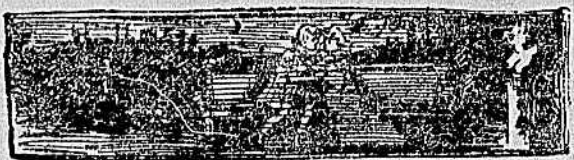

The reference in the first stanza is to Othello, the Moor of Venice, who, in Shakespeare's play of "Othello," puts his wife to death. Before doing so, he says, "Put out the light and then—Put out the light!" Other selections from Sidney Lanier, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch, have already been printed in this series.

THE innocent sweet Day is dead,
Dark Night hath slain her in her bed,
O, Moors are as fierce to kill as we will—
Put out the light, said he.

A sweeter light than ever rayed
From star of heaven or eye of maid
Has vanished in the unknown shade,
—She's dead, she's dead, said he.

Now, in a wild, sad after mood
The tawny Night sits still to brood
Upon the dawn-time when he wooed,
—I would she lived, said he.

Star-memories of happier times,
Of loving deeds and lovers' rhymes,
Throng forth in silvery pantomimes,
—Come back, O Day! said he.

BOY "SURGEONS"

SAVE FRIEND'S LIFE

Acting Upon School Knowledge, They Prevent Companion From Bleeding to Death.

(By Associated Press.)

MT. CARMEL, PA., July 20.—Forester Yarnall and a number of boys were returning from a fishing party yesterday, when Yarnall stepped on a broken bottle. The great toe of the right foot was cut nearly off, and several leading arteries were severed.

Companions of the boy, remembering their study of physiology in school, acted promptly. One boy, Joseph Snyder, having a band from his hat and twisted it around Yarnall's ankle. A stick was then brought into play, and the band was drawn so tight as to stop the circulation of blood.

By this time Yarnall was senseless from loss of blood. The band was held a mile distant. The attending surgeon stated that if it had not been for the prompt action of the boys Yarnall would have died.

DAILY FASHION HINTS.

CHILD'S FROCK.

No. 4570: Box-plaited costume for little girls and boys are always most suitable for everyday or best wear. The design shown here is a most comfortable style and is simple in make. The front and back have two box-plaits extending to the shoulder. The broad panel front under which the closing is effected is a very pretty idea and gives a long line that is becoming to most childish figures. The belt may be made of ribbon or the fancy cord. The belt may be worn in the usual manner or passed under the pleats as illustrated. Plique, madras, lawn, gingham or serge will develop charmingly in this mode.

Sizes—2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 12 years.

GOVERNOR COMING.

Nothing Heard of Danville Matter at the Capitol.

Governor Montague will return from Princess Anne Courthouse to-day, having spoken at the unveiling of a Confederate monument there on yesterday.

His Excellency and Secretary Eggleston will then complete negotiations for the transfer of the quarters and will begin moving their office effects on Monday. They will likely be quartered in a suite of nice rooms in the Washington Hotel pending the rebuilding of the Capitol.

Private Secretary Ritchie said he had received no word from Mayor Wooding, of Danville, concerning the trouble which was feared over the alleged murderer who is there in jail.

Burnett's Extract of Vanilla.

In purity and strength pre-eminently superior.—"Adv."

They could but point to his well-known nickname; his evil notoriety; say that, magnificent sheep-dog as he was, he was known even in his work as a rough hand—stock and land, and lastly, remain significantly that the Grange was one of the few farms that had so far escaped unscathed. For with the belief that the Black Killer was a sheep-dog they held as an article of faith that he would in honor spare his master's flock.

There may, indeed, have been prejudice in their judgment. For each had his private grudge against the Terror; and night every man bore on his own person, or on clothes, on the head of his dog, the mark of that huge savage.

"Why, he near killed me Lasse!" cried Lonsdale.

"And he did kill the Wexler!"

"And Wan Tromp!"

"And see poor old Wenus!" says John Swan, and pulls out that fair Amazon, battered almost past recognition, but a weapon of war.

"That's Red Wull—bloody he end!"

"And he laid me Rasper by for high three weeks!" continues Tipper, pointing to the yet unhealed scars on the neck of the bobbed.

"And look here!" cries Sanderson, exposing a ragged wound on Sheep's throat; "that's the Terror—black be his fat!"

"AY," says Long Kirby with an oath; "the lyes love him 'nigh as much as we do."

"Yes," says Tammas. "Yo'jest watch!"

The old man slips out of the lap-room; and in another moment from the road without comes a heavy, regular pat-pat, as of some big creature approaching, and, blending with the sound, little shuffling footsteps.

In an instant every dog in the room has risen to his feet and is staring at the door with snuffing, glowing eyes; lips wrinkling, bristles rising; throats rumbling.

An uneasy hand fumbles at the door; a ready voice calls, "Wullie, come here!" and the dog, as if by magic, starts to either side the fireplace, tails down, ears back, grumbling still; the picture of cowed passion.

Then the door opens; Tammas enters, grinning and exulting, after a moment's scrutiny, resumes his former position before the fire.

Meanwhile over M'Adam, seemingly all unconscious of these suspicions, a change had come. Whether it was that for the time he heard less of the best sheep-dog in the North, or for some more occult reason, certain it is, that he became his old self. His tongue wagged as gayly and blithely as of yore; and hardly a night passed but he infuriated Tammas almost to blows with his impudences and insidious sarcasms.

Old John Maddox, one evening at the Sylvester Arms, inquired of him what his notion was as to identity of the Killer.

"I have no suspicions," Mr. Maddox said, "but I have a notion."

"What's that?" asked the man, who replied, unhesitatingly, "the dog is a granger."

"What's that?" asked the man, who replied, unhesitatingly, "the dog is a granger."

"What's that?" asked the man, who replied, unhesitatingly, "the dog is a granger."

HUNG FROM HOOK BY HIS EYE LID

Four-Year-Old Boy Has Harrowing Experience, But Escapes Serious Injury.

For seven minutes four-year-old Edward Siddell hung from an iron hammock hook by his right eyelid, supported in the air by Mrs. R. Emrig, of No. 2322 Patton Street, while some one summoned a physician yesterday. The child was lifted down and taken to the Episcopal Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained only a slight laceration of the eyelid.

Edward was playing in the yard of Mrs. Emrig's home, when he ran against the iron hook. The point of the hook caught beneath his right eyelid and he was suspended in the air with his feet several inches from the ground. Mrs. Emrig heard his cry, and fearing that she might injure the boy by taking him from the hook, she held him in her arms while some one sent for a physician. At the hospital, where the physician had been called, it was found that all marks of the injury will probably be gone in a few days.—Philadelphia Inquirer.
